City Could Save $1M On Snow Removal This Year

By SCOTT JACKSON

The mild winter weather seen this year in the Boston area could save Quincy upwards of $1 million in snow removal costs alone, Mayor Thomas Koch said.

Though it could change in the coming weeks, this winter has been notable for lack of snow seen in and around Boston. The Quincy Public Schools have had to

Residential Tax Exemption No Panacea, Koch Says

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch signaled a reluctance to sign off on a residential tax exemption for Quincy homeowners should the City Council approve such a measure but stopped short of saying he would veto it.

Koch, in a recent interview, said approving such a tax break for homeowners would just shift the burden elsewhere. He also defended the city's taxes, citing services various departments provide.

City Councillors Nina Liang and Brian Palmucci earlier this year introduced legislation to accept the portion of state law which grants a tax exemption to residents who own and occupy their own homes. The exact amount of the exemption would be determined by the council.

Liang, in an earlier interview with The Sun, said the council could hold hearings on the proposal as soon as this spring. One key point that will be discussed at those hearings is how the city would make up for the loss in tax revenue that adopting the exemption would create, she said.

Koch told The Sun the proposed tax exemption is no panacea.

"I have complete respect for my colleagues in government, but any time you go to make a move to make somebody's taxes less,

Quincy, Milton Chambers Of Commerce Join Forces

An affiliation agreement was recently signed at a Milton Chamber of Commerce luncheon between the leaders of the Quincy and Milton Chambers at the new R3BILT Fitness Studio, located at Granite Avenue on the Quincy/Milton line.

This new alliance will allow active Milton Chamber members to join the Quincy Chamber, and become dual members, in order to take advantage of the multitude of opportunities available to current Quincy Chamber members. The partnership will also enhance the abilities of members of both Chambers to access business growth opportunities in each community.

In addition to the 50+ networking events specifically geared toward greater exposure and visibility, the Quincy Chamber offers unique benefits to entrepreneurs seeking affordable, convenient co-working space (IQ1400), a small-business accelerator program (QUEST), along with special collaboration opportunities with other non-profit associations (BRAGB, CHNA).

"The Milton Chamber is thrilled with the affiliation with the Quincy Chamber," said President Dr. Kimberly Harte, "and are looking forward to the opportunity to work together toward promoting an even stronger economic community that benefits everyone."

Tim Cahill, president of the Quincy Chamber remarked, "We are excited to offer Milton Chamber members the ability to enhance and grow their businesses in our vibrant, growing city with a population of nearly 100,000 residents and over 3,000 small and Fortune 500 businesses. This agreement will serve to strengthen the bond between the two neighboring communities."

Over the next year, the two Chambers will work collaboratively on membership outreach to both organizations in order to explain the unique value proposition this affiliation presents to those businesses who seek dual membership. The two Chambers will remain strongly committed to their respective host community while they work together to forge a stronger and more resilient business environment in both Milton and Quincy.

QUINCY CHAMBER OF Commerce President Tim Cahill and Milton Chamber of Commerce President Dr. Kimberly Harte shake hands after signing an agreement forming an alliance between the two local business organizations.

Quincy Career Vocational Technical Program Expands

By TOM GORMAN

The Quincy Public Schools' Career Vocational Technical Education program continues to expand where students can earn certificates and college credits.

Career Vocational Technical Education (CVTE) Executive director Keith Segalla, CVTE Department Chairwoman Rebecca McInnis, and North Quincy High School CVTE Department Chairwoman Marianne Collins outlined the CVTE Program Improvement Plan during a recent school committee meeting. The program offers 19 programs in classroom, hands-on, and apprenticeship training in construction trades, engineering, healthcare, culinary, automobile, and technical fields.

Students can receive Certificates of Occupational Proficiency in various programs such as construction.

"This shows that the student has completed at least two years of the program," McInnis said. "In addition, the students receive many program specific credentials."

Students in early education and preschool Lead the Way programs can receive college credit if they attend certain institutions. A new program this year, Hubspot, provides training for busi-

Plastic Bag Ban Starts March 1 With 90-Day Transitional Period

Quincy's prohibition on plastic retail bags will launch next week with a 90-day transition period prior to any enforcement to allow retailers and consumers to get accustomed to the new law.

The law takes effect on March 1, and the transition period will last until June 1, meaning that stores will have the opportunity to deplete current stocks of single-use plastic shopping bags prior to any fines being levied in accordance with the law, city officials said Tuesday.

The transition will also provide time for a "Bring Your Own Bag" public education campaign that encourages residents to use reusable bags for all of their shopping. While enforcement won't begin until June, residents and businesses are also encouraged to begin working within the law as soon as possible.

Under the law, stores can charge for recyclable paper bags and for re-usable bags.

A full copy of the ordinance can be found online at quincyma.gov.

The law defines plastic shopping bags as point-of-sale (carry-out) plastic bags provided to customers by retailers. The bag ban does not include produce bags, bags used to wrap frozen food, meat or fish to prevent contamination, laundry or dry cleaner bags or newspaper bags.

After the transition period, the law is subject to enforcement by the city's licensing board. Following a written warning, the penalties for retailers using retail plastic bag are $50 and then $100 for each subsequent offense.

Koch Recused From Police Hirings

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch has recused himself from the latest round of police hirings because his son is among the candidates being considered. The hiring process will instead be led by a former state public safety secretary. Police Chief Paul Keenan, who is the mayor's brother-in-law, is likewise recused from the hiring process.

Koch, in a recent interview, said the city is looking to hire 20 or more police officers in the near future. Those patrol officers will fill vacancies created by retirements and new slots for patrol officers the mayor will propose adding in the budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

"One of the challenges with both police and fire is that you have so many retirements every year, and they are not always expected," Koch explained. "You can plan when a guy or girl is going to be 65—they have to retire—but a lot of them get out well before that and you don't necessarily know ahead of time. Then you've got injuries and other things that happen."

"You end up with these openings or unfilled positions, so you're never at full complement, so we're always kind of chasing your tail."

"With the police, we're probably going to be in the 20s range," the mayor added.

"Each year we've incrementally gone up on personnel in police and fire. Back in the '70s, I think they maxed out, patrolmen, at like 188. When I took office, it was like 141. We're at 164 and in the new budget we're going to go to 170. I don't know that we'll ever get to 188, but because we're a city that has grown, I think it's appropriate—you can never have enough patrolmen. That's a given when it comes to a city or an urban area."

The mayor has recused himself from the process because his son, Cornelius Koch, is among those candidates eligible to be hired. Koch has appointed Daniel Bennett to oversee the process; Bennett, a former prosecutor, was the state's public safety secretary during Gov. Charlie Baker's first term in office.

"I certainly knew my son took the exam, I knew he scored well, but, with the amount of veterans on the list, I never thought we would get near him," the mayor said.

"When it became clear to me that he was within striking distance, that's when I made the decision. I got a hold of my solicitor and said I've got to step out of this process. We did that, I did what I needed to do under the ethics laws, I notified the city clerk and appointed Dan Bennett."

"He's an attorney, a very credible, respected guy. I called and asked if it was something he would do, and he said he would love to do it. Essentially, the process was turned over to him working with the investigators. The Police Department has people who do all of the background checks on all the candidates and all that stuff."

"There is a process here. Obviously, you've got to take the test. That's the start. You've got to get through a background check. You've got to get through a physical exam and a psychological. Then the names start coming up for me to appoint.

"We're waiting on his report and then we'll move from there."

Koch said he would like the hiring process completed soon, so the city can secure seats at the various police academies within the state to train the new patrol officers.

"There are academies around the state and the seats fill up," Koch said. "It is imperative to get them done as quickly as we can."

Cornelius Koch is a 2019 graduate of St. Joseph's College of Maine, where he majored in political science and was captain of the lacrosse team, his father said. He is currently working for Suffolk Construction.

The mayor said his son has long been interested in pursuing a career in law enforcement.

"He always expressed an interest in law enforcement," Koch said. "How that was going to manifest itself—whether it was local police, customs, who knew?"

"He's got a decent job with Suffolk Construction and doing well there, but if it's a passion, it's a passion."

Half Of U.S. Adults Have Been Targeted By Impostor Scams, Says AARP Survey

With 2020 Census Pending, Findings Show

Many May Not Recognize Expected Census Scams

Impostor scams continue to target large numbers of Americans, and as the federal government launches the 2020 Census, a majority may be susceptible to phony Census correspondence or telephone calls, according to results of a survey recently released by the AARP Fraud Watch Network.

The study, "The Impostors: Stealing Money, Damaging Lives," focused on government impostor scams, in which criminals pose as representatives of agencies such as the IRS, Social Security Administration or Census Bureau; and relationship scams, when fraudsters pretend to be a relative or someone seeking a romantic relationship online. Researchers also probed the effects of fraud schemes on intended victims.

Nearly half of U.S. adults (47%) reported that they have been targeted by an impostor scam, according to the AARP survey. The Federal Trade Commission received 647,000 reports of impostor scams during 2019, more than any other type of fraud; the FTC says government impostor scams increased more than 50 percent over 2018.

The Decennial Census presents a new opportunity for the criminals who impersonate government officials, and AARP's survey shows that many consumers may be at risk:

- Seventy percent of respondents were incorrect or unsure about whether the Census Bureau would contact them via email. Invitations to participate in the Census actually will be sent via U.S. mail.

- More than a third (35%) expect or are unsure whether the Census questionnaire will ask for their Social Security number. The Census Bureau says it will never ask for sensitive information such as Social Security number, bank account information or passwords, or request payment of a fee."

"We've learned that scammers are very shrewd and adept at capitalizing on current events," said Mike Festa, AARP Massachusetts State Director. "The Census has been in the news, so most people are expecting to hear soon from the Census Bureau. Scammers will use that to their advantage as they aim to deceive people into sharing sensitive information or handing over money."

Invitations to respond to the Decennial Census will be mailed to U.S. households in March. Responses to the Census questions may be submitted online or via mail or telephone. By May, Census workers will begin visiting or contacting households that have not yet responded.

The toll of impostor scams goes beyond the financial impact, according to the AARP survey. Among those who have been targeted and/or victimized, 18% reported that they experienced health problems or emotional distress as a result of the encounter. People ages 18 to 49 reported health or emotional issues at a higher rate than those age 50 or older.

Among other findings of the survey:

- Forty-five percent of people age 50 and older have been contacted by a government impostor, as compared to 35% of those ages 18 to 49.

- Two in five U.S. adults use dating websites, apps or online social groups to find potential dates or romantic partners. Of those, half encountered one of the "red flags" of romance fraud, including requests for money.

- The majority of U.S. adults are at least somewhat familiar with government impostor scams and relationship scams (including romance fraud and the grandparent scam)—indicating that efforts by AARP and other consumer advocates to increase public awareness are working. However,

- Fifty-five percent of survey respondents failed a 10-question fraud safety quiz.

AARP members and the public are invited to learn more about impostor scams and other fraud schemes by participating in an Online Community Q&A during February. Amy Nofziger, Director, AARP Fraud Victim Support, is the host, and will answer your questions and take comments about scams you have encountered.

Visit: <https://community.aarp.org/t5/Scams-Fraud/Ask-The-Expert-Get-your-questions-about-fraud-answered/tid/2217725>

The AARP Fraud Watch Network launched in 2013 as a free resource for people of all ages. Consumers may sign up for "Watchdog Alert" emails that deliver information about scams, or call a free helpline at 877-908-3360 to report scams or get help from trained volunteers in the event someone falls victim to scammers' tactics.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1913 picturesque postcard view of Squaw Rock in Squantum Park. The wooden structure on top of the rock served as an observation deck from which you could see the expanse of Boston Harbor while enjoying the fresh ocean breezes. A ramp ran down the other side to the water where floats were kept by local residents for their boats. Nearby was the Old Squantum House, a resort hotel complete with its own pier for regular steamboat service from Boston. The park could also be reached by electric trolley from the Atlantic railroad depot. Very popular in the middle and late in the 19th century, this spot eventually lost its appeal after the construction of the nearby Moon Island sewer vats became increasingly obnoxious.

Support Ayers' Alzheimer's Disease Legislation

I have known State Rep. Bruce Ayers for nearly 30 years from his time as Ward 6 city councillor to almost 22 years as state representative. As I read his recent op-ed (The Fight to Save Our Memory, Quincy Sun - Feb. 13th), I remember well that period of his family's life.

I knew his mother Beverly and we were friends. She was always going somewhere, doing something and helping with his many campaigns too. I remember her slow descent into the abyss of losing touch with the life around her. It had to be super tough for the entire family and Bruce's dad.

Alzheimer's Disease is like staying awake while the person you love has already departed. I had no idea it was the 6th leading cause of death in America. We need to do more work on this disease. More research dollars. More help with medical costs for family caregivers.

I am sure when death finally arrives, it might even feel like an after-thought or blessing for all. It also brings out guilt in caregivers who feel so helpless and useless at times.

READERS FORUM

I was very lucky that when my mother's last months were upon her, she knew it. I was glad she kept her memory and feistiness. It was very difficult for me when she passed but at least she was aware of everything around her which was both good and bad for her. I can only imagine how hard it must be for children to watch their parent or parents lose their memory with the body living on a while longer.

We need to do much more when it comes to Alzheimer's. I support Rep. Bruce Ayers who has filed H 598, "An Act relative to early-onset Alzheimer's disease." This is one good step in the battle with this horrible and lingering disease.

Please call your reps up on Beacon Hill and tell them you support House Bill 598.

Bankruptcy Filing Will Not Affect Local Scouting Programs

You have likely heard or read by now that the Boy Scouts of America has filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy protection laws so that they may financially restructure themselves to responsibly address the mounting legal claims as well as ensure the fiscal solvency of the corporation going forward.

Even one case of child abuse is reprehensible and unacceptable, yet the Boy Scouts of America failed in the past to properly protect some of its members from predators. Fortunately, the BSA has learned a lot from their past mistakes and now have developed one of the safest youth development programs in the world and has repeatedly won awards for its youth safety programs.

However, the BSA also acknowledges its responsibility to address the injuries of the past. Towards that end, they have guaranteed lifelong counseling services for the victims and they have put aside hundreds of millions of dollars to address the likely substantial penalty phase of the court cases at hand.

The BSA's legal and financial teams were consulted and they advised that filing bankruptcy was the best way to protect the funds for the claimants as well as ensure the fiscal viability of the organization going forward. This action is not uncommon amongst non-profit corporations, and it does not mean that the BSA is going out of business.

This was a filing under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code which allows a corporation some "breathing time" to restructure its finances and debt and present a new fiscal plan to the judge for their approval. This is not a filing that many of you may be familiar with under chapter 7 of the bankruptcy code that calls for the immediate liquidation of assets where you typically see a padlock thrown on the front door of a business along with signs that say "business closed." Rather, the BSA has asked the courts to give it protection from its creditors for a period of time (typically months) to restructure its finances into a healthier place.

The local units (Packs, Troops, and Crews) that actually deliver the Scouting program in our communities, are completely separate (financially and legally) corporate entities from the BSA. The BSA's filing for bankruptcy will have NO EFFECT on our local Scouting programs as long as the public continues its support of our youth and the generous adult leaders who give so much of their own time, talent, and treasure to ensure that Scouting continues to thrive in Quincy.

Please do not hesitate to encourage the youth in your family to join and experience the joy and memories of a lifetime that typify the Scouting program. Do not hesitate to buy popcorn, flowers, or wreaths from a Scouts the next time you see one selling. Do not hesitate to wave or clap or cheer as the Scouts march down the city street paying their respects to our veterans or the American Flag. Lastly, don't hesitate to say "thanks!" the next time you see a Scout volunteering at a community clean up or Eagle Scout project.

The youth in our Scouting units are our future, and they are trying to learn and engrain in their moral compass a mindset of doing good for the community first before self, and a mindset of leading others towards good deeds as well. I trust you will join me in investing in that mindset, that program, as the core of the future of Quincy.

Truly yours in Scouting,

Garage Bond Issue Faces Struggle

The $1 million bond issue sought by Mayor Arthur Tobin to add two floors to a downtown-parking garage faced tough sledding at a special meeting of the City Council.

The proposal required a two-thirds vote of the council or six votes to pass, and a Quincy Sun survey prior to the meeting showed two councillors against it, one not voting, one undecided and one unavailable for comment.

"I can't see bonding city money for construction of the garage," said Council President Leo J. Kelly, who said he planned to vote against the bond. "It just opens us up to other problems." Councillor Stephen McGrath also said he planned to vote "no" on the bond proposal.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who is president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, said that he would not vote on the issue for fear of conflict of interest since his bank is on land that figures in another phase of the project.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES NEXT TUESDAY, 35% TO 40% TURNOUT PREDICTED

A voter turnout of 35% is expected for Tuesday's presidential primary that features contests on every ballot including rival slates for the Democratic Committee in Ward 2.

City Clerk John M. Gillis predicted a 35% turnout and he added it could go much higher if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy were to make a good showing against President Carter in New Hampshire.

Major candidates for the Republican nomination for president included Cong. John Anderson, Sen. Howard Baker, George H.W. Bush, former Gov. John Connelly, former Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Bob Dole.

The Democratic ballot contains the names of President Jimmy Carter, Edmund Brown, Jr., and Sen. Kennedy.

March Activities, Events For Children At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES

Thomas Crane
Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following events and activities for children during the month of March.

Get Crafty

Stop by the children's room on Friday mornings any time from 10 a.m. to noon to make a simple craft. Each week will feature a different theme, and you are welcome to get crazy creative. This month we'll be making frog visors on the 6th, paper plate collar style necklaces on the 13th, butterfly puppets on the 20th and a sheep mask on the 27th.

This program is for all ages with an adult's help.

Dr. Seuss Birthday Extravaganza

It is Dr. Seuss' birthday and we are having a Cat in the Hat birthday bonanza on Saturday, March 7th. Stop by the Main Library children's room from 10 a.m. to noon to meet the Cat in the Hat. Make Dr. Seuss themed crafts (while supplies last). Watch a Dr. Seuss movie, play pin the hat on the Cat or Dr. Seuss Tic Tac Toe and more.

Please note this special celebration is happening in place of our regularly scheduled Music and Movement with Rubi program which will take place on Saturday, March 21st.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets at 7 p.m. on the third Thursday in March.

On March 19th we will be discussing "My Dog May Be a Genius" by Jack Prelutsky.

Have you ever encountered an underwater marching band, a pig in a bathing suit, a pet orangutan, or a witch in a hardware store? Have you ever sat with a skunk in a courtroom, shopped for a dinosaur, or conversed with a Buppel, a Wosstrus, a Violinnet, or a Celloon? You will have, once you've read this exuberant collaboration from Jack Prelutsky and illustrator James Stevenson.

Stop by the children's room to pick up a copy of the book to read before the meeting.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets at 7 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. This month we'll be meeting on March 10th.

This month our theme is World War II. For March we're delving into history and exploring the time period of World War II. We'll be reading both fiction and nonfiction for this meeting, so go ahead and pick something from either category or both.

Keep in mind, the reason we call it World War II is because it truly spanned the globe, so books for this month take place all over the world. While this is going to be a heavier discussion than usual due to the serious nature of the subject, it's an important time in history and well worth reading about.

Take a look at the books put aside in the Children's Room and venture down to the 940s in the nonfiction section to find out about the real events that the novels are about.

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out what we'll be reading next month and join us then.

Chickadees Book Club for children in grades 1 and 2. This group works a little bit differently than our other book groups, sort of a cross between book group and storytime. Registration is required and is limited to Quincy residents. Registration begins on Monday, March 9th online at thomascranelibrary.org, by phone at 617-376-1300 x4 or in person at the Main Library Children's Room.

The Chickadees will meet on Monday, March 23 and 30 and April 6, 13 and 27, at 6:30 p.m.

Using short stories and early readers as our text we'll have fun with simple games and crafts while reinforcing key reading and discussion skills in this fun and interactive program. Children must be able to read and write independently to join this group.

Questions? Stop by or call the Children's Room at 617-376-1300 x4 and ask for Mrs. Miller.

Festive Purim Events At Beth Shalom Of The Blue Hills

On Sunday, March 8th, the synagogue's Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will sponsor its Annual Purim Carnival from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the synagogue at 18 Shoolman Way in Milton. The Purim Carnival will feature games, booths, prizes, raffles, food and fun for all ages, and prizes for costumes. It is open to the entire community with free admission, and tickets for booths and snacks will be available for purchase (costumed children and adults get extra tickets). Everyone is welcome, especially costumed children, who can participate in the costume parade and win prizes.

On Tuesday evening, March 10th, the synagogue will hold a Community Purim Celebration & Passover Wine Tasting. For school-age children pre-K

- 7th grade, there will be Purim educational activities starting at 4:15 p.m., followed by a light dairy dinner from 5:30-5:50 p.m. Adults may enjoy tasty hot and cold hors d'oeuvres and Passover wine tasting from 5:45-6:15, all free. RSVP's are appreciated from those in the wider community by Friday, March 6th.

The entire congregation will join together at 5:50 - 6:45 p.m. for the Megillah reading, songs and a costume parade, followed by Hamantashen for all and more wine tasting. The public is invited and costumes are encouraged for everyone.

The Megillah mentioned above tells the Purim story of Esther and her uncle Mordecai, who saved their Jewish brethren in ancient Shushan from the evil designs of the wicked Haman. Children and adults wear costumes and listen carefully to the Hebrew text so they can use noisemakers to drown out the name of Haman every time it is uttered.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills conducts a full schedule of religious, cultural, educational and social events and services throughout the year. It also operates a religious school for Jewish children of all grade levels. It is located at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton.

There is limited parking at the synagogue, with overflow parking on nearby Pleasant Street. There is no parking allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

For further information about Purim or other temple activities, call the temple office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Seafood Pot Pie Made With Dumplings

By MARIE

Most everyone likes seafood, baked, broiled or in a chowder or stew. There are so many things that can be done with all kinds of fish.

Today's recipe is for a seafood pot pie made with dumplings. You can either use ready-made biscuits or make your own dumplings.

Ingredients:

12 ounces of scallops (I used large scallops)
12 ounces of medium sized shrimp, cleaned and deveined.
2 cups of frozen vegetables (I used mixed vegetables)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons of oil
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup clam juice or seafood stock
½ cup of milk

In the oil, sauté the scallops and shrimp. When done, set aside. Next you will make the cream sauce.

In a pan heat the butter, add the flour making a roux along with the seafood stock and the milk, cook and stir until it thickens. Add the two cups of frozen vegetables. (I used a combination of mixed vegetables.)

Stir in the vegetables in the cream sauce then add the cooked shrimp and scallops stir until well blended and then turn off heat after a couple of minutes.

Then add dumplings and you can also use biscuits.

You can make this dish in one big pan on top of the stove or you can put the seafood mixture in individual ramekins, top with dumpling mixture and bake in the oven at 350 degrees until dumplings start to get golden brown on top.

Dumplings

Dumpling Batter

1 and 1/3 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon of salt
2/3 cup of 2% milk
1 tablespoon of butter melted and cooled slightly

Baba Ghanoush (With Skin)

By SUSIE

Sometimes referred to as eggplant caviar, Baba Ghanoush is a Middle Eastern dish that is easy to make and heart healthy as well. Most recipes recommend taking the skin off after roasting but the dark purple skin contains an incredible amount of important fiber, antioxidants, vitamins and minerals. I always suggest eating the skin on everything if you can.

It is important to roast long enough and to get eggplants with thinner skin.

One large organic eggplant or several smaller ones with thinner skin.

2 tablespoons organic extra virgin olive oil and more for roasting

1 tablespoon organic tahini
1 tablespoon organic lemon juice
1 teaspoon organic cumin
2 cloves organic garlic minced
½ tsp smoked paprika
Minced organic parsley
Sea salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Quarter the eggplant lengthwise and brush with salt and olive oil.

Place eggplant quarters on baking sheet with parchment paper and put into your preheated oven.

Roast for about 45 minutes or more in order for the skin to be nice and soft.

Remove and let cool.

After cooling cut in chunks and mash with the garlic, cumin, lemon juice, tahini, salt and pepper to taste as well as you can. It will not be as smooth as if you were to take the skin off prior to mashing (which you totally can) but again, lots of health benefits to the skin staying on.

You can also put it in food processor or blender to make extra smooth as well.

Drizzle with olive oil and garnish with minced parsley. Serve with pita, crackers or raw veggies as a dip or top a salad, put on a sandwich, its great with just about anything. Enjoy!

What Is A Pseudomonas Infection? Is It Serious?

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Pseudomonas is a common bacteria found all over the world in soil, water, and plants. Certain healthy people even have strains of it growing on their skin on moist parts of their body, like their armpits or genital area. If you're in good health, you could come into contact with pseudomonas and not get ill.

Pseudomonas infections typically occur when the immune system has been previously weakened. This infection can occur in various parts of your body. These germs can survive in pools, hot tubs, and even on dirty contact lenses.

Commonly, the most severe infections happen in the hospital where people are already sick. In excess of 50,000 of these hospital-related infections happen in the United States each year, and can prove life-threatening to those most at risk, particularly if they are affected by certain strains that don't respond to drugs. The most common type that humans get is Pseudomonas aeruginosa.

Symptoms of Pseudomonas Infections

Pseudomonas infections can develop in different parts of the body, including:

- Lungs

- Eyes and ears
- Skin
- Blood
- Bones and joints
- Urinary tract
- Heart valves

Symptoms vary depending on where the infection is located. However you may experience:

- Fever, swelling, tenderness

- Low blood pressure
- Yellowing of the skin
- Rapid heartbeat
- Trouble breathing

Itch, irritation around the tiny holes in your skin that hair grows from (folliculitis)

- Ear problems, including swelling, pain, hearing loss, itching, discharge

- Sinus problems

- Pain or other problems when you pee

- Eye problems, especially from contaminated contacts

- Purple-black spots on the skin surrounded by a red ring

Causes of Pseudomonas Infections

Ear and skin infections can transpire from water that contains the germ that gets in your ears or on skin. Contaminated contact lenses can also cause eye infections. Pseudomonas infections that are acquired in the hospital can happen after surgery. They can also develop in the course of a severe sickness, such as pneumonia. Germs can spread in the hospital environment such as on equipment or surfaces in patient rooms. Doctors, nurses, and other health care workers also can spread the bacteria with their hands. The bacteria also live in moist environments such as:

- Sinks and toilets

- Pools

- Antiseptic solutions

- Armpits and genitals

Pseudomonas Risk Factors

Healthy people in general are at a low risk for contracting pseudomonas infections. However, a few groups may be more susceptible than others, including people who inject drugs, as well as young African American males seeming to have a greater risk of heart valve infections. Additionally, pregnant women have a greater risk due to hormone changes that can affect their immune system.

Hospital patients face the greatest risk, particularly if they have a:

- Breathing machine

- Catheter

- Wound from surgery

- Severe burn

Infections also tend to be more critical in people who have:

- An autoimmune disorder

- Diabetes

- Cystic fibrosis
- COPD
- Rheumatoid arthritis
- HIV or AIDS
- A weakened immune system resulting from cancer treatment or organ transplant medicines

Risk also varies by age:

- Babies have a more significant risk for joint infections

- Children are at a higher risk for bone infections after foot wounds, especially after stepping on a nail or sharp object

- Older patients appear to be more vulnerable to bone and joint infections

Treatment for Pseudomonas

If you have symptoms of Pseudomonas infection, your healthcare provider will typically take a sample of blood or other body fluids to confirm the type of bacteria causing your infection and to assist in determining which medicine will work most effectively.

Oral or intravenous antibiotics are commonly used to treat Pseudomonas infections. Topical creams are used to treat pseudomonas skin infections, while ear and eye infections would usually require antibiotic drops. Particular symptoms, such as hot tub folliculitis (inflammation of the skin where hair follicles grow), usually subside without treatment.

Lung, heart, and blood issues may require long-term treatment with antibiotics, while other symptoms or particular situations may require a combination of medicines.

It is important to note that some infections, in fact approximately 6,000 each year, become drug resistant, failing to respond to antibiotic regimens. These infections may require specialized treatment, drainage, and possibly surgical intervention.

Keep in mind that approximately 400 people each year die from a pseudomonas infection. It is vitally important to remember that if you are prescribed an antibiotic prescription for your infection, you must finish the entire prescription, even if you feel better. Failing to do this may cause the infection can remain in your system, making it more difficult to treat.

Preventing Pseudomonas Infection

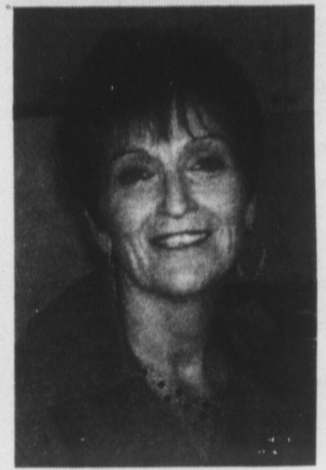

For anyone who uses pools and hot tubs:

- Avoid any that look dirty or might not have enough chlorine in them.

- Remove and clean your swimwear as soon as you get out of a pool or hot tub.

- Don't wear contacts when you swim or soak.

For all contact lens users:

Health Commissioner
RUTH JONES

- Clean your contacts and properly store your contact solution.

Hospital visitors should wash their hands with soap and water before and after the visit. Health care providers and staff should:

- Wash hands often.

- Wear gloves and masks.

- Clean patient rooms, nurse carts, food trays, and blood pressure cuffs.

When you or someone in your home has had this infection:

- Clean contaminated surfaces.

- Wash contaminated clothes and sheets with hot water.

Everyone should follow these rules for good hygiene:

- Wash your hands often with soap and water.

- Cough or sneeze into a tissue or your elbow if a tissue is not available.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

AAA Study: Older Men Struggle More Than Women When Cutting Back On Driving

As older adults reduce their driving, men report struggling more than women and having fewer resources for making important life decisions.

According to new research from the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety, when compared to women, men over 65 who have reduced driving in the last year report lower levels of social support when it comes to advice, suggestions and information about issues they may be facing.

"When it comes to older drivers, data from our study suggests there are social support differences between older male and female drivers," said Mary Maguire, director of Public and Legislative Affairs for AAA Northeast.

Of the study's nearly 3,000 participants, 1 in 5 older drivers reported reducing driving in the past year, with more women, 57%, than men, 43%, saying they had cut back on driving.

"Men and women who have reduced driving report similar levels of care and emotional support from friends and family, but older male drivers find it harder to seek out advice and guidance," Maguire said.

Past AAA Foundation research has found that many older adults reduce their driving, or self-regulate, to daytime, short trips, or familiar locations due to health issues and it can lead to overall declines in life satisfaction.

"Cutting back on driving may threaten older drivers' sense of independence and emotional well-being, and it limits their ability to maintain social ties, remain active and engaged, and manage healthcare," said AAA Northeast Senior Public Affairs manager Diana Imondi. "Just like planning ahead for financial and healthcare needs in retirement, finding out more about local mobility choices – even before they are needed – can allow an older driver to plan for the day when it makes sense to limit or stop driving."

AAA suggests older drivers and their families speak with their physicians in addition to exploring alternative forms of transportation and recognize that these options may complement their driving. Transportation alternatives vary from city to city, so AAA suggests the following:

- Carpooling – Sharing a ride with friends or neighbors is one way for older adults who limit driving.

- Public Transportation – When available, city buses, light rail and subway systems are great ways to get around. By planning ahead, an older driver can build up a comfort level with public transportation services to prepare for a time when he or she may have to limit or stop driving.

- Local Transportation Services – If the cost of a taxi or difficulty walking to a bus stop are obstacles to using public transit, an older adult could benefit from using low-cost, community-based transportation services.

- Ridesharing – If older adults have a smartphone, they can download a rideshare app to help with local transportation.

Initiating a conversation about safe driving with an older driver, especially a parent, is challenging for most people. While there is no simple or easy way to address the subject, AAA is here to help. Visit senior-driving.aaa.com for some important tips.

The findings are part of the AAA LongROAD (Longitudinal Research on Aging Drivers) study, a multi-year research program to better understand and meet the safety and mobility needs of older drivers in the United States. The research was performed at Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health with support from the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety. To find out more about the report, visit Newsroom. AAA.com.

Career Vo-Tech Program Expands

ness technology students where they can earn a certificate in social media marketing.

McInnis explained job shadowing is an important aspect of the CVTE program.

"This brings students into a company to give them an idea of what particular job or particular company would be like," she said.

This year, healthcare students shadowed the district's nurses in middle and elementary schools assisting them in testing and recording hearing and vision tests as well as taking students' height and weight.

McInnis said the healthcare technology students are also offered placements at such clinical sites as day-care centers and nursing facilities.

Co-ops are available for metal and plumbing students and "live work" students in the automotive and culinary arts deal directly with customers. Culinary students prepare and serve lunches in the Quincy high School café and automotive technology students repair cars in the school's six bays.

Apprenticeships are offered electrical union, IBEW Local 103 and south Shore Hospital.

"We continue to incorporate apprenticeship opportunities for our students," said McInnis.

Internships are available in several fields including automotive, business, healthcare, and protective services.

"We offer a multitude of options for our students to acquire real world experiences," McInnis said.

Quincy Access Television (QATV) for example, has CVTE students work in all television production areas such as directing, editing, graphics, and videography.

Longtime QATV employees Mark Crosby and Jonathan Caliri, both graduates of the CVTE film production program at Quincy High School, explained how the program provided the foundation for their careers and how it helps today's students through internships.

"We have seen the students come in with a lot of knowledge," Caliri said. "We give them a little push so they'll feel comfortable at the controls."

He added the students are also involved in producing their own programs.

"They're not just crewing shows, but creating them," he said.

Caliri said the internship gives students "real world experience of how to do a TV show."

Crosby said the interns provide "amazing contribution" to the productions.

Quincy High School student Salwa Shuman told the committee about her experience interning at QATV and credited the CVTE program for providing such an opportunity at the high school level. She now works part-time at QATV.

"This program brought me a step closer to my career," she said.

North Quincy High School student Samaya Jabbar spoke about how the Project Lead the Way Engineering Technology program helped her prepare her career path. She brought a model of an amusement park she created through 3D printing and explained the eight months it took her to create.

She credited her teachers for encouraging her to treat and deal with issues "like an engineer."

McInnis said that among the goals for the CVTE program this year are incorporating more mathematics, expanding Credit for Life and financial literacy skills. The district is also preparing for the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education coordinated program review visit that will take place in April, 2021.

Committee member Paul Bregoli voiced concern that North Quincy High School students are being left out of internship opportunities. Segalla said that discussions are underway with QATV to provide internships there for North Quincy High School students.

Committee members had high praise for the CVTE program and singled out Jabbar and Shuman as prime examples of its success.

"The context and insight on the way of expanding work-based learning is exciting," said Doug Gutro.

Addressing Shuman and Jabbar, Vice Chairman Anthony Andronico said, "I can't wait to see what you do next."

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Will Selling Large Asset Affect Wife's Social Security?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizen

Dear Rusty: If I have reached full retirement age (FRA) and wish to sell a $500,000 asset, will it affect my wife's Social Security if we file jointly? I have heard that it will affect my Medicare (the amount withheld each month) but she still has three more years before she can receive benefits. Is it better to liquidate assets before she reaches FRA if we will be penalized? Would her Medicare be affected as well as mine? Signed: Planning Ahead

Dear Planning: Only earnings from working can affect Social Security (SS) benefits, so passive income from selling a large asset won't affect your wife's future Social Security benefits (nor yours). However, if your "combined income" from all sources (which is your Adjusted Gross Income plus any other non-taxable income you may have, plus 50% of your SS benefits) exceeds certain levels, your Medicare premium will be subject to the Income Related Medicare Adjustment Amount (IRMAA) rule, which will add a supplemental amount to your base Medicare Part B premium. If your combined income (including that sold asset) for the 2020 tax year is between $326,000 and $750,000 then your Medicare premium for 2022 will be at least $462.70 (I say "at least" because the Medicare Part B premium can increase each year).

The IRMAA premium increases on a sliding scale starting at $174,001 of combined income for a married couple filing jointly ($87,001 for an individual). If you liquidate that large asset this year, it will be reported on your 2020 income tax return which will be filed in 2021. That will mean that your Medicare premium for 2022 will be affected by IRMAA, and so will your wife's if she has enrolled in Medicare at age 65 in 2021 (which she need not do if she has other "creditable" healthcare coverage through an employer).

So, should you liquidate that large asset before your wife reaches her SS full retirement age? It doesn't matter for Social Security purposes because that passive income will not affect your wife's SS benefit. But, if your wife enrolls in Medicare at age 65, her Medicare Part B premium, as well as yours, will be subject to IRMAA and, thus be considerably higher than the standard premium of $144.60 (the amount for 2020). Note that if your combined income for the following year is low enough to reduce your IRMAA premium, the Medicare premium will revert back to the lower level. Medicare typically uses income data from 2 years ago to determine current year premium, so they wouldn't normally change your IRMAA premium back until they receive your income data for the previous year from the IRS. But, it is possible for you to contact Social Security earlier and provide them with proof that your income is now lower than reported in a previous year (causing the higher IRMAA premium) and they will adjust your Medicare premium sooner than they otherwise might.

cancel classes on just one day this season, Dec. 3. Roughly six inches of snow fell during that storm.

Koch said there have been seven winter-weather events in the city so far this season, though not all have been plowable. If the trend continues, the city could save somewhere in the range of $1 million on snow removal costs.

"Keep in mind that we spend a lot of money up front. We fill the salt shed. We spend money on the equipment - replacing plows, fixing sanders, all of that stuff. So, there is money automatically spent and then, of course, during the course of the year whatever the events are," he said. "If it continues on the way we're going, we should see a significant savings in the snow budget."

In addition, Quincy has not seen any extended cold snaps this winter, which means the city and residents alike have saved money on their energy bills.

"The other piece that's good for everybody is we haven't had the deep cold, so everyone's heating bills should be a little better, including the city's, so that is all positive," Koch said.

The budget for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, included $2.7 million for snow and ice removal costs. Any unspent money can be transferred to other accounts, with approval from the City Council, or it would become free cash. That free cash likewise could be spent with council approval.

'Solarbration' At East Congregational Church March 15

East Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., Milton near the Quincy line, invites the public to its "Solarbration" event Sunday, March 15 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The church will dedicate and celebrate its Community Solar Project with special guest, the Rev. Dr. Jim Antal, special advisor on Climate Justice to the General Minister and president of the United Church of Christ and author of "Climate Church, Climate World."

Events marking the occasion on March 15 include:

- 10 a.m. Celebratory Worship with The Rev. Dr. Jim Antal
- 11:15 a.m. procession from worship to the celebration
- 11:30 a.m. grand celebration begins

• 12 noon dedication

Some 177 solar panels were mounted on the roof of East Congregational Church of Milton in March 2019. These panels now produce more clean, renewable energy than the church needs for itself.

A first-of-its-kind-in-Eastern Mass. Community Solar Partnership was forged with the church's mission partner, Epiphany School of Dorchester to make it possible for them to access additional clean energy for their electrical needs.

To date East Church's massive solar array has produced 36.32 megawatts of electrical power, saved 56,228 pounds of CO2 emissions, and positively impacted the environment at the level of planting 1,416 trees or more than 28 acres of forest.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. on Tuesday, March 3, and close at 8 p.m. that night. Voters in Quincy will head to the same polling places that were used in 2019.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo anticipates a turnout of 45 percent in Quincy, meaning more than 27,000 of the city's 60,048 voters will cast ballots by the time polls close. Her estimate is based on the turnout in the last presidential primary in March 2016, when 23,758 of the city's 55,714 eligible voters cast ballots, a turnout of 42.64 percent.

Massachusetts has an open primary, meaning unenrolled voters — those who are registered but not affiliated with any party — may cast a ballot in any party's primary. Voters who are registered party members may only vote in that party's primary.

Absentee voting for the primary began in late January and will continue through noon on Monday, March 2. Crispo said 703 absentee ballots had been cast as of early Tuesday.

The state has also authorized early voting in the presidential primary for the first time this year. The early voting period began Monday and will continue through Friday.

In Quincy, early voting is taking place inside the lower level of the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) at 1305 Hancock St. during business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Crispo said 323 voters cast ballots on Monday during the first day of early voting.

All told, she expects nearly one quarter of those who vote in the primary will do so by early or absentee balloting.

"I am hoping people will take advantage of it," Crispo said.

Crispo's staff will use a new high-speed scanner at City Hall to count the early ballots cast this year, unlike the November 2016 presidential election, when early ballots were sent to individual polling places to be counted. Quincy and Malden are the two Bay State communities to test the new scanner during the presidential primary. Once all the early ballots are scanned, the data will be saved on a thumb drive and then added to the tallies from each precinct.

"In 2016, it was very difficult, so we are piloting a new way of doing it," Crispo said. "I'm excited."

Crispo said she would file a report following the primary discussing the effectiveness of the new system. That information would then be sent to city and town clerks statewide and could lead to the adoption of the new equipment throughout the state for the November election. March 3, widely known as Super Tuesday, will feature Democratic primaries in Massachusetts and 13 other states. A total of 1,344 pledged delegates are at stake on Super Tuesday, roughly one third of the 3,979 available in all primaries leading up to the July Democratic National Convention in Milwaukee. If a candidate can win a simple majority of those prior to the convention, they would be the party's nominee. If not, a brokered convention, which hasn't taken place since 1952, might follow.

Massachusetts has the fifth most pledged delegates at stake on Super Tuesday with 91, after California, Texas, North Carolina and Virginia.

Three states have held contests to date, with South Carolina holding its primary this Saturday.

In the initial results for the Feb. 4 Iowa caucus, Pete Buttigieg, the former mayor of South Bend, Indiana, won more delegates, 13, than any other candidate. Bernie Sanders, a Vermont senator, won the second highest number of delegates, 12, and was first in total votes. Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren finished third with eight delegates, followed by former vice president Joseph Biden (six) and Minnesota Senator Amy Klobuchar (one).

Sanders topped the field in the New Hampshire primary on Feb. 11 and Buttigieg was runner up; both won nine delegates that night. Klobuchar finished third, winning six delegates. Warren and Biden placed fourth and fifth in the Granite State, but neither received enough votes to earn a delegate.

Sanders won again this past weekend in the Nevada caucus, finishing with nearly half of the county convention delegates at stake. Biden was runner up and Buttigieg finished third.

Sanders, who was runner up for the Democratic nomination in 2016, carried Quincy four years ago. He bested Hillary Clinton, who wound up winning the nomination, 49.41 percent to 46.71 percent in Quincy. Clinton won statewide, however, finishing with 49.7 percent of the vote to Sanders' 48.3 percent.

On the Republican side, President Donald Trump, who is seeking a second term, cruised to victory in Iowa and New Hampshire. Trump received 39 of 40 delegates at stake in Iowa and all 22 available in New Hampshire. William Weld, a former Massachusetts governor, received the other delegate in Iowa.

There are 41 pledged delegates to the Republican National Convention at stake in Massachusetts and 814 overall on Super Tuesday. There will be a total of 2,440 pledged delegates available in the Republican primaries.

A dozen other states will hold GOP primaries on Super Tuesday and Alaska will hold its party convention that day. There were no Republican primaries or caucuses between New Hampshire and Super Tuesday.

Trump carried Quincy in the Republican primary four years ago, receiving 53.71 percent of the vote. Trump won the Massachusetts primary with 48.99 percent of the vote.

O'Donnell Provides Update On Mortgage Transparency Legislation

Referred To House Committee On Bills In Third Reading

Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds William P. O'Donnell announces that legislation, House Bill 1413 accompanied by Senate Bill 960, that would promote mortgage transparency for consumers, has been referred to the House Committee on Bills in the Third Reading for review.

"The impact of this legislation," noted O'Donnell, "guarantees that a homeowner would know when a third party has been assigned their residential mortgage (usually sold by one financial institution to another), since the legislation requires the mortgage assignment to be recorded at the appropriate Registry of Deeds office within 30 days of the transaction."

Additionally, consumers looking to record a mortgage discharge and those facing foreclosure would benefit as the legislation provides a permanent source of reference for the homeowner. They could even view the transaction online via the relevant Registry of Deeds website.

O'Donnell said he has been a strong supporter of the legislation and has twice testified on its merits before the legislature's Joint Committee on the Judiciary.

"This legislation levels the playing field as it requires the larger lending institutions who in the past have not recorded assignments to do so just as the smaller local community banks have been doing all along," O'Donnell said.

"I am hopeful the House Committee on Bills in the Third Reading will report the legislation favorably to the floor of the House of Representatives for consideration. This legislation benefits homeowners across Massachusetts, since it will eliminate uncertainty as to which lending institution is the mortgage holder of record," O'Donnell added.

Ask Barbara Graceffa Merging Antique, Vintage Décor Items

Although young and just purchasing our first home, we like both antique and vintage décor items and want to incorporate some into our contemporary home. We also like an artistic look. Can we merge these into a coherent space and where do we start? Mr. and Mrs. Q

You enjoy an eclectic decorating scheme, meaning "derived from ideas, style, or taste from a broad and diverse range of sources." This style is environmentally friendly as it does not delete natural resources, so kudos to your sustainable approach to interior decorating.

Antique furniture and accessories are more than 100 years old while vintage items range from 10-100 years old. Not only can you blend both into today's homes, your penchant for an artistic flare – often hand-crafted, surprising, and unstructured, makes the marriage of styles a little easier.

"Brown" or stained furniture is experiencing a resurgence after a long hiatus and both stained and painted pieces nicely fit in a contemporary home. Because you have an artistic edge, I would suggest you paint vintage end tables, for example, in a trendy color (other than a neutral) to complement your décor.

Where can you source these materials? Head to the thrift stores and second-hand shops. You might also go "shopping" in your parents' or grandparents' attic to find anything from vintage barware to tables and chairs. Or jump in the car for a short road trip to Windsmith Mills in Norwood (open Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays) or Main Street Antiques in Plymouth Center and plan to spend at least an hour in each amazing place.

By all means, have fun shopping, seek out and embrace artistic pieces, and don't rush. The best interiors are curated over time with a piece of artwork purchased on vacation, from family hand-me-downs, or even from a neighborhood yard sale or found on the curb on trash day. My home is full of all these cherished things and each comes with a story I love to share with my guests.

35 New Firefighters Hired - Largest Class In City History

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Fire Department's 35 newest members were sworn in Friday afternoon before a standing-room-only crowd of more than 100 family members, friends and firefighters.

The class of new recruits is the largest in the history of the department, according to Joseph Jackson, the city's interim fire chief.

"There are more firefighters in this class than most departments in the commonwealth have on the job," Jackson said. "It's a huge, huge class."

The firefighters were sworn in during a ceremony inside the Great Hall of the McIntyre Government Center. City Clerk Nicole Crispo administered the oath of office to the firefighters in two groups.

The first group included: Matthew Cardarelli, David Duong, Shawn Grady, Matthew Brouillard, Eric Weissmeyer, Rory Mulrey, David Atkins, Derek Murphy, Brendan Forde, Justin Drum, Roy Muller, Alfred Trinh, Andrew Moccia, Mitchell Law and James Vialpando.

The second group included:

Tyler Lagrotteria, Matthew Lawlor, Michael Granahan, Derek White, Robert Connell, Austin Granger, Jeffrey Belovarac, Jon Banuk, James Fitzpatrick, Brian Byrne, James Mullaney, Evan Darcy, Ryan Brennan, Nicholas Manning, Ryan Dunne, Benjamin Ronan, James Cedrone, Shawn Clancy and Collin McCarthy.

Jackson congratulated the new recruits on joining the department.

"Congratulations to you and your families. This is a great day for you guys and you guys are going to do great," he said. "You guys are going to make a lot of connections that you are going to carry with you, not just in your career, but for the rest of life."

Mayor Thomas Koch said each firefighter has his own story.

"Each of you have your own story," he said. "Some of you served in the military. Some of you have had ancestors serving in the department or the city in some form. Some of you may have dreamed of being firemen since you were a kid."

Koch reminded the new recruits the public will call on them in times of need.

"You're going to be called upon in a lot of dif-

Central Wrestlers Shine At City-Wide Wrestling Championships

Wrestling took center stage on a recent Monday afternoon at the Quincy High School gymnasium as the five middle schools competed to crown a champion in four weight classes.

In the Super Lightweight class, Central's Tim Heise (Grade 8) prevailed in an exciting finals match over teammate Drini Panariti (Grade 6) by a score of 12-10 to take the gold medal. Finn Meaney, also in the 8th grade at Central, won the bronze medal with a 7-0 decision over Devereux Fuller (Grade 8 - Central).

At Lightweight, Atlantic's Marshall Gowell (Grade 7) scored a 4-0 decision over Central's Renzo Santangelo (Grade 8) to secure the gold medal. The bronze medal match featured a pin by Central's Nathan Doyle (Grade 8) over Ian Scott (Central - Grade 7) in the first period of the match.

The Middleweight class was a rematch of the finals match held in the previous season as Central's Matt Nellany (Grade 8) won a closely contested match over last year's champion Kajia Pakkala (South-West Middle School - Grade 8) by a score of 4-1. The bronze medal was won by Central's Angelo Orlando (Grade 8) who recorded a first period pin over Central's Ryan Setow (Grade 8).

The Heavyweight class was dominated by Central's Noah Baker (Grade 8) who recorded three first period pins on his way to the gold medal. His finals victory was over Central's Anthony Melchione (Grade 7), who took home the silver medal. Capturing the bronze medal was Atlantic's Ayden McEhliney (Grade 6) who defeated Central's Alessia Lemus (Grade 7).

Coach Mario Venturelli expressed thanks to all the Middle School Athletic Directors for their work with participation in the program. He also commended Quincy-North Quincy Head Wrestling Coach Pat Lane and all of his volunteer wrestlers who helped with scoring, timing and refereeing the matches. Volunteer Assistant Coach JC Tumbleson also played a key role in the success of the program.

with a 14-8 record; Newton North's record is 14-6.

The number one seed in the bracket is Bridgewater-Raynham (18-2 record).

The North Quincy boys basketball team will play Dighton-Rehoboth in D-H Thursday, Feb. 27 at 6:30 p.m. in the Div. 2 South Sectional. The Red Raiders (13-7) are the 11th seed in the bracket while D-H (14-6) is the six seed. The number one team in the sectional is Dennis Yarmouth (20-2).

The North Quincy boys hockey team is seeded #14 in the Div. 3 South Sectional Tournament. The Red Raiders (10-8-2) will play 3-seed Hanover (16-3-1) at the Canton Ice House Friday, Feb. 28 at 7:20 p.m.

Hopkinton (19-1-0) is the number one seed in the bracket.

NQ Girls Basketball Wins Season Finale

A convincing win 49-22 win over Roxbury Prep brought the curtain down on the Red Raider girls basketball season.

Senior captain Amanda Hellmuth helped propel North to a 16-8 lead at half-time with 7 points. Freshman center Mia Pecevich, in her varsity debut, added 4 first half points in an impressive showing.

North expanded their lead to 11 after 3 quarters as Hellmuth added 5 more points, including her 38th three pointer of the season. Hellmuth finished with 43 threes for her career and was the game's leading scorer with 16. Fallon Hobin finished the game with 7 while Pecevich tallied 6. Junior Jaelyn Egan scored her varsity points in the fourth quarter. 12 of the 15 North players scored in the game. Earlier in the week

North traveled to Hull and dropped a 49-25 contest to the Pirates as the visitors shot 15% from the floor. Hobin led the Red and Black with 11 points.

North traveled to Scituate and lost 69-43 with the Red Raiders dynamic duo of Hobin and Hellmuth leading the visitors with 18 and 15 points respectively. North also dropped a home contest to Pembroke 60-43. Hobin again led the scoring parade with 14 points. Sophomore guard Stephanie Huang had her best scoring game of the year tallying 13 points including three three-pointers. Hellmuth again hit for double figures adding 10.

"It was a tough year record wise for us but these kids gave it their best efforts night in and night out," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "They were a fun group to coach and I'll miss them."

Seniors who will be graduating include captains Ashley Caldwell, Amanda Hellmuth and Isabella Thong as well as Phoebe Johnston and Alexa Radzik.

QNN Girls Hockey Enjoys Success To Finish Out Season

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy/North Quincy High girls hockey co-op's season came to a close Feb. 18, but it is far from over for their team.

QNN underwent a rebuilding year, finishing the season at 5-13-2 after going winless in their first nine games of the season.

"So many of them have improved so much and it's not just the obvious kids," QNN head coach Jeff Craig said. "We have kids that three months ago had just started skating to now where they're out there making plays, playing tough and contributing. Everyone is contributing and I'm really proud. It's good to finish strong and see the improvement all-around."

"They stayed positive the whole year," he added. "You never would've guessed what our record was being around them. They're a fun group of kids that get along on and off the ice. I told them that this year is just part of the process. We're just gonna build on it. It's exciting."

Craig said his coaching staff, including Peter Christom, Kyle Craig, and Katie Mulligan, played vital roles in helping the players improve throughout the year.

This season, QNN stood out from their opponents in a few ways.

Offensively, they scored 97 goals in 20 games, an average of 4.85 goals per game. More than half of those came off the stick of freshman Maggie Lynch (50 goals, 14 assists) while sophomore Orla O'Driscoll (33 goals, 23 assists) finished second on the team in scoring. Lynch led the Patriot League in goals scored and no team in the league had their top-two forwards put as many goals as QNN did.

In the team's final regular season game of the year, a 10-4 win over Stoughton on Feb. 18 at Quincy Youth Arena, Lynch and O'Driscoll scored five goals each.

"They're fun to watch," Craig said. "We're getting really good crowds at these games now. People like watching them--and the whole team. They're just so talented. They're instant offense every single game. It doesn't matter who we play."

Like O'Driscoll and Lynch, the entire QNN roster is a young team. Their oldest player this year was junior goalie Emma Ford. The rest of their roster was composed of sophomores, freshmen and eighth graders. That means the team could return its exact same roster next year plus incoming freshmen and potentially some eighth graders.

"It's huge," Craig said. "They all love hockey, every one of them. And they love spending time together. Some years it's tough to get kids together in the off-season, but for these kids it won't be a problem. I told them, 'our season starts now.' We've got to be ready for next year."

"Our goal is to make the tournament next year," he added. "We were only a few players away from doing that this year. We just need some depth."

The team's youngest players this season, forward Avery Kennedy and defender Caroline Snyder, both eighth graders, are excited for what the future holds for the team.

"I think it's going to be really great," Kennedy said. "Once we're older in a few years, we should be really powerful. The team is really gonna build off this year and we'll keep getting better."

"I think it's just great to have everyone coming back because we're only gonna keep building and get stronger," Snyder added. "It's great to have a head start to be where we are now."

The incoming players should help provide depth for QNN, something they lacked this season. At full strength, the team had 14 players this season, but they were not at full strength for much of the season. Ultimately, there were games where they not only had just three defenders, but fewer than two full lines of forwards.

Next season, the team should be in a better position in net than they were at the start of this season. Now, they have two goalies who have started varsity games and won: Ford and freshman goalie Hailey Concannon, who started in net against Stoughton.

"It's so important just to have stability at the position," Craig said. "They're both improving so much from where they came from. I know they're gonna put a lot of work in for us during the off-season. Hailey had never played goalie before this year and Emma did the same thing last year. It's good to have both."

Quincy College Granite Men's Hoop Playoff Bound

Weymouth native Cam Mason played the best basketball of the season, averaging 23 points per game over the last five games to lead Quincy College Granite men's basketball into their first NJCAA Region 21 basketball tournament appearance since Quincy College Athletics started to compete National Junior College Athletic Association play in the fall of 2017.

Quincy's second half of the season and run for the playoffs concluded with a thrilling 111 - 110 overtime victory over last year's Region 21 Champions Bunker Hill Community College during final game of the season on Feb. 22nd to solidify their playoff appearance.

During the month of February, Quincy College Granite men's basketball started serious playoff contention with a victory over local rival Massasoit Community College as Braintree's Anthony Peacock scored 40 points and 18 rebounds. He was joined on the offensive side by Mansfield's Damani Scott, Jerome Stephens, and Cam Mason to earn a sweep of the two-game series this year.

The Granite then went on to secure four more wins versus Ben Franklin 96 - 87, Northern Essex 96 - 85, Holyoke 110 - 108, and the big overtime win over Bunker Hill 111 - 110.

As the regular season comes to a close, Head Coach Doug Scott says the offense is coming together at the right time. Quincy College Granite guards Greg Thomas from Catholic Memorial HS, Korvonne Whitehall and Damani Scott have taken turns in running the offense. Cam Mason and Jerome Stephens have provided a strong 3-point scoring punch along with the two-way play of Amondee Weaver up front. Anthony Peacock and Weymouth's 6'9 Julian Mincey have been unstoppable in the paint in most games this year. Scott also had praise for the efforts of two newcomers this second half. Quincy's Tom Jaehnig and Bridgewater's Matt Williams have rounded out the strong bench play.

On Wednesday, Feb. 26th, Quincy College Granite will travel to University of Connecticut at Avery Point for the quarterfinal round of the playoffs. Both the team and coaches are confident that they will continue on to the 2-day semifinal and final series to be held at Massasoit Community College on Feb. 29 and March 1st. You can follow the Quincy Granite Men's Basketball Team's tournament action on Instagram by

During the offseason, Quincy College Athletics and Quincy College men's basketball and soccer student athletes will take part in the Quincy Public Schools Read Across America Program on March 5th. Team members will travel to the Clifford Marshall Elementary School to read to the students in cooperation with Literacy Specialist

Kelly Antonellis and Nancy McPartlin.

Quincy College Athletic Director Jack Raymer said: "Our athletes are students and community members. It's my goal to give back to our city, by involving our student athletes in more community activities to show the many other talents our students have to share other than their athletic skills."

elected to the Democratic and Republican ward committees and voters can choose to vote for the whole slate.

There are 10 seats on each Libertarian and Green-Rainbow ward committee, though no candidates are on the ballot for either party in any of Quincy's six wards. Massachusetts will also hold a state primary on Tuesday, Sept. 1. Headlining the September primary is the Democratic contest for the U.S. Senate seat, which will feature incumbent Edward Markey and U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy III.

The primary could also feature contested races for various Norfolk County positions, including sheriff, register of probate and sheriff. Multiple Quincy residents have taken papers to run for those seats. The final election is set for Tuesday, Nov. 3. The state will have two weeks of early voting leading up to the November election.

7 Quincy Democrats Among 12 Candidates Eying County Seats on the county commission. Nomination papers for those races were made available by the secretary of state's office on Feb. 11. Candidates must amass 1,000 signatures from registered voters in the county to qualify for the ballot. The signatures a candidate collects must come from voters registered in the same party as that candidate, or from unenrolled voters.

The candidates must submit the signatures to local officials for certification by the end of the day on April 28 and file nomination papers with the secretary of state no later than 5 p.m. on May 26.

If necessary, primary elections for those seats will take place on Sept. 1 during the state primary. The final election will take place on Nov. 3.

Debra O'Malley, the spokeswoman for Secretary of State William Galvin, said at least 12 county residents had taken out papers to run for seats in Norfolk County as of noon on Monday. She noted that the list of candidates, "would not include someone who may have gotten a blank nomination paper from a friend and made copies."

"We would not find out about that person until they filed the papers," O'Malley said.

Four candidates — one Republican and three Democrats — have taken out papers to run in the special election for sheriff. The winner will serve for two years and will be eligible to run for a full six-year term in 2022.

The Republican candidate is incumbent Jerry McDermott of Westwood. He was appointed to the seat by Gov. Charlie Baker in December 2018, after Michael Bellotti left the sheriff's position to become the interim president of Quincy College.

The Democratic candidates include James Coughlin of Dedham, a retired State Police detective; Patrick McDermott, the county's register of probate and a former Quincy city councillor; and William Phelan, a former Quincy mayor.

Patrick McDermott, who is not related to Jerry McDermott, is not seeking reelection as register of probate this year. So far, four candidates, all Democrats, are running to fill that seat.

The candidates running for register of probate are: Quincy City Councillor Noel DiBona, Quincy School Committee member Kathryn Hubley, attorney Courtney Madden of Quincy and Michael Walsh, a Westwood selectman.

The county treasurer's position is currently held by James Timilty, a Walpole Democrat and former state representative. The county commissioners appointed him to the seat in May 2017 following the resignation of Joseph Connelly; Timilty retained the seat in a special election two years ago and the winner of this year's contest will be elected to a six-year term.

Timilty has drawn one challenger so far, Brad Croall, a Quincy Democrat and the incumbent Ward 2 councillor.

The two county commissioner seats at stake this year are held by Joseph Shea, a Quincy Democrat and former city clerk, and Francis O'Brien, a Dedham Democrat. O'Brien has announced he will not run this year.

Shea is seeking re-election and has pulled nomination papers to run for a new four-year term. In addition to Shea, Dennis Guilfoyle has pulled papers to run for county commissioner. Guilfoyle is a Democrat and a Dedham selectman.

No more than one county commissioner may be elected from the same city or town, meaning any Quincy residents running for a seat would be competing against Shea. It also means no Milton residents can run, given that the third commissioner, Peter Collins, is a resident there.

Residential Tax Exemption No Panacea, Koch Says

somebody else's taxes are going to go up. It's not the panacea that some of them believe it is," the mayor said.

"I believe our chief assessor, Colleen Healy, has had some sit downs with some of them on it. I think it's a great, popular, political issue to throw out. Everybody wants their taxes lowered, but it's much like the old days when they proposed giving cuts to seniors on water rates — somebody else has to pick up the increase then."

Quincy already taxes residential and commercial properties at different rates, Koch noted. The difference between residential and commercial tax rates is the highest allowed under state law.

"We are maxed out on the commercial side. They pay 175 percent, so they are already paying a max," Koch said. "If we're dropping someone else's taxes through a program, you still have to raise a minimum amount to meet the bills and meet the budget. Where are we going to make that up?"

"You may be eligible for the decrease, but because you're getting decreased, the guy next door to you might go up. Somebody has got to pay, and I say that respectfully."

When asked if he would veto the tax exemption if councillors were to approve it, Koch said it was too soon to say.

"I don't want to speculate at this point because I don't know that there has really been enough deliberation about it at the council level to make any heads or tails of it at this point," he said.

"I do know in my experience over the years, if somebody is getting a break, somebody else is picking up the tab."

Property taxes pay the lion's share, roughly 75 percent, of Quincy's municipal budget. State aid funds about 14 percent of the budget and the remaining 11 percent comes from local receipts, a category that includes various revenue streams such as motor vehicle excise tax, the local option meals tax and fees from building permits.

Quincy had the 122nd highest average single-family tax bill out of the 332 communities ranked by the state Department of Revenue in 2019, the most recent year for which data was available. The average single-family home in the city was valued at $466,552 last year and the tax bill for that property was $5,855.

Koch said the services offered in Quincy are among the best in the state and the city's residents do not have to pay for items some other communities charge for on top of taxes, such as trash disposal or all-day kindergarten.

"Our budget is a good budget," the mayor said. "When I say good budget, I think it really respects the values of our city. Strong education. Strong public safety. The residents of the city have good services.

When they call, the get immediate response. They get good service and it costs money to do that.

"I've said it a million times: We fall right in the middle in Massachusetts of where we are in taxes. We're at the top of the heap on services. You show me a community that delivers more and better services than Quincy; I think you would have quite an argument if you pointed one out, because I don't see it.

"There is a balance to everything. A lot of communities, [residents] pay for trash to be picked up, for example. Some communities still pay for kindergarten. The city provides damn good services for what you pay in taxes."

"We have a great city," Koch added. "I think the budget is strong and it is reflective of the tremendous services the people of the city get. Very few communities, for example, pump out basements. We've got these storm events, we go to private homes and pump out basements. Somebody gets a sewer backup, you go to some of towns around us, you've got to call Mr. Drain...Our sewer guy comes down within a half an hour and they are cleaning the sewer lines out and helping people get out of that mess."

"I don't care what area you point to. Our response times for first responders are as good as anywhere. All that stuff costs money."

License Board Warns Downtown Restaurant Over Dumpster

By SCOTT JACKSON

The managers of a Quincy Center restaurant were brought before the city's licensing board after the eatery was cited 10 times in recent months for having its dumpster left on the street and were given 30 days to remedy the situation.

The managers of the restaurant said they would arrange a meeting with owners of other establishments on the same block as they try to find a solution.

The Board of License Commissioners on Feb. 18 held a hearing on the citations issued to The Shaking Crab, a seafood restaurant at 22 Cottage Ave.

Health Commissioner Ruth Jones said the restaurant's dumpster has been found on Cottage Avenue on multiple occasions starting the last week of December, including times when it has been left in a handicap parking spot. The problem continued, with some breaks, into February.

The restaurant has been ticketed at least ten times since the end of December, Jones said.

"It is unacceptable for that trash container to be out on the street. It is unacceptable for that trash container to be in a handicap parking spot," she said. "I don't feel like The Shaking Crab is doing enough to take care of the situation."

Simon Manandhar, the restaurant's operations manager, said The Shaking Crab has one of eight dumpsters located in a fenced-in alley off Cottage Avenue. The Shaking Crab, he said, uses one trash contractor while other restaurants whose dumpsters are in the same alley have a different contractor.

Manandhar said the contractor used by the other restaurants wheels The Shaking Crab's dumpster out of the alley to access the other containers and doesn't put it back. The Shaking Crab, he added, has surveillance video showing the other trash contractor doing so.

"It's not even our trash company that's dragging it and leaving it there," he said.

Manandhar said he is looking to find a way to remedy the situation. He suggested his restaurant could switch trash contractors or chain its dumpster down so it couldn't be moved from the alley without a key.

Susie Chan, who also works for The Shaking Crab, suggested she could meet with the owners of the restaurants who use the same alley to work on a solution.

"I understand the frustration," Chan said. "If we could get everybody together that has a trash barrel back there and work out a system...maybe we could work something out."

One idea Chan raised was moving The Shaking Crab's dumpster to a spot in the alley furthest away from Cottage Avenue. She and Manandhar said their dumpster had been in that spot previously but was moved for unknown reasons to the spot closest to the street.

"We can guarantee that our trash company will pull it all the way out and push it all the way back in and we can be responsible at that point for making sure every day that they are doing that," Chan said.

Jones said she would be willing to meet with the owners of The Shaking Crab and other nearby restaurants to address the matter.

"I wouldn't be against having a meeting with everybody there...to get this settled for once and for all because this is a major issue," she said. "In the meantime, it's still your responsibility to keep that dumpster off the street and out of the handicap spot. It's just not acceptable."

City Clerk Nicole Crispo, the board's chairwoman, said a month should be enough time to find a solution.

"Hopefully we can come back and look at this in 30 days and see where you're at," Crispo said. "Work with them to make it better so that trash is never out on the street again — especially in a handicap spot. It's totally unacceptable."

the item. The second appropriation, $270,000 for the new truck, was approved 7-0.

The money for the appropriations will come from the city's state-certified free cash. The city has just over $2 million in free cash remaining following those two votes Monday and a third appropriation of $65,000 for costs related to next week's presidential primary.

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris said it is important to provide each of the newly hired firefighters with two sets of turnout gear to minimize their exposure to carcinogens and other harmful material they can encounter at the scene of a fire.

"The new gear for the new recruits is really essential. These folks that are coming on, they should be given every opportunity to stay safe," Harris said.

"That bell is going to ring, and they are going to come help the citizens of Quincy. We need them to be safe. Having two sets of gear is important."

The $270,000 appropriation will match a $545,000 grant the city received to purchase the new fire engine, according to Joseph Jackson, the city's acting fire chief. Jackson said the new truck would replace Engine 2, which is stationed at the North Quincy firehouse.

Councillor Noel DiBona welcomed the use of a grant to offset the purchase price of the new truck.

"Anytime that we can leverage any type of other funding to piggyback upon, not paying it out of pocket...is always a win-win," he said. "It helps us out, so I am glad to support this."

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr. said it was important that the Fire Department has the personnel and equipment to keep up with the growth of the city.

"I'm certainly glad to see the additional equipment coming in, the additional firefighters going on and seeing the trucks are fully manned, because...we are building a lot and the demands that are coming upon the Fire Department are going to be great," he said.

The city had more than $8 million in free cash, money that is on hand but unencumbered, certified by the state last fall. City councillors in December approved Koch's request to appropriate $2.9 million towards the general fund to reduce property tax rates and $2.59 million to various reserve accounts, leaving $2.59 million in free cash available before Monday's meeting.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said she would support the appropriations introduced Monday but was concerned the amount of free cash the city had on hand in the fall was too high.

"I will approve those, but I am very concerned about the fact that the taxpayers of the city of Quincy are really stressing and hurting," she said. "We keep over budgeting and coming back with these enormous amounts of free cash."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci echoed the same sentiment.

"I appreciate Councillor Mahoney's sentiment regarding the taxpayer. I share the same concern about the quote-unquote free cash that we end up spending up here every year that is left over from the prior year budget," he said.

"I think it's probably no coincidence that, over the past several years, what we spend free cash on has been specifically dedicated to the fire service and the police service, because, at least from where I sit, those are things that I am very rarely going to say no to, supporting the folks who are out there literally risking their lives."

City Clerk Nicole Crispo said the additional $65,000 was needed for election costs to offset the impact of an increase in the state minimum wage from $12 to $12.75 that went into effect Jan. 1. The city, she said, has hired 324 poll workers for the March 3 primary and they are paid minimum wage.

In addition, Crispo said the appropriation would help cover the costs of five days of early voting that the state is requiring ahead of the presidential primary for the first time this year. Crispo said the early voting period had not been anticipated when the elections budget was approved last spring and state officials did not notify communities about early voting ahead of the primary until last month.

The $65,000 appropriation for the election was approved in a 7-0 vote.

Courtney Madden Democratic Candidate For Norfolk County Register Of Probate

Quincy resident, attorney and community strategist Courtney Madden announces she is running for the open Register of Probate and Family Court seat in Norfolk County. The seat is being vacated by Patrick McDermott.

"The Office of the Register of Probate and Family Court serves a vital role in our community, protecting our most vulnerable residents in some of their most difficult times of need. That's why I'm tossing my hat into the ring" for Register of Probate, Madden said in her announcement release.

"After careful consideration, I am announcing my candidacy for Register of Probate because families in need deserve to have a system and government that works for us. When a loved one passes away, or families require government intervention, residents of Norfolk County need to know they have an advocate on their side who is dedicated to cutting red tape, ensuring fiscal responsibility and modernizing the Office of Probate and Family Courts in Norfolk County to better serve residents.

"I am proud to announce my candidacy for Register of Probate because all Norfolk County families deserve dignity and respect when entering the Family and Probate courthouse," Madden said. "I am running, not because I want a title, but because this is home and home matters. My professional career has always been focused on bringing people together, empowering them, and most importantly building bridges so that government can be a partner in solving problems and helping families - and not an obstacle. Family and Probate court touches all our lives and I am ready to be your Register who knows how to navigate judicial waters and will always put Norfolk residents first."

Madden is a seasoned political professional and lawyer focused on increasing civic engagement and empowering everyday citizens. As executive director for New Leaders Council, Courtney manages the recruitment, training, and promotion of young leaders in over fifty markets around the country.

While speaking to voters at a recent kitchen table talk in Quincy, Madden explained the importance of the role of Register of Probate and Family Courts telling attendees, "The Register of Probate and Family courts is a servant leader position and it's where I can contribute the most to the community I care so deeply about. It's where my talent for building coalitions and public private partnerships can fill in the gaps in resources to our families. The Register of Probate needs to be a leader, a servant, and an advocate. I am all of the above."

Madden, a Democrat, is asking voters for their support in the primary election on Sept. 1st "because this election is about protecting families and Norfolk County needs a tireless advocate who will always put the people of Norfolk County first."

On Sunday Feb. 16, at approximately 7:40 p.m., Officers Francis and Millane were dispatched to the Walgreens Pharmacy located at 330 Hancock St. for a report of a larceny in progress.

While in route to the incident, Quincy Police Communications notified responding units that the suspects fled the store towards McDonalds (located at 275 Hancock St.). Upon arrival at Walgreens, the Officers interviewed the store manager and front clerk who said they observed a male and female in the store with Walgreens merchandise inside a Walgreens bag. The employees suspected the pair were about to begin shoplifting or already had shoplifted.

The pair (suspects) approached an inventory scanner in one of the aisles and removed it from its docking station and then concealed it in the male's pocket. The employees added the scanner is valued at approximately $3,000. The suspects then exited the store and this is when the Police were called. A physical and clothing description of the suspects was given out to all Police units.

Officer Millane proceeded to the North Quincy train station to try to prevent the suspects from hopping onto the next train. He located them on the platform and questioned them. They initially denied having been in Walgreens but then handed over the hand-held scanner, calling it a cell phone and claiming he found it and did not steal it.

Officer Francis arrived on the train platform where Officer Millane had the suspects detained and informed them they were under arrest for larceny over $1,200. The male suspect was placed under arrest and handcuffed.

As Officer Millane started to place handcuffs on the female suspect, the male became belligerent about being arrested for finding the "phone" (the scanner). The female then became hostile and resisted arrest and being handcuffed. Her shouting and screaming caused many bystanders to stop and turn to observe her actions. The female stiffened her limbs and jumping up onto the bench to avoid arrest. As the female did this, the male's behavior further deteriorated and he attempted to stand-up from the bench, but he was quickly subdued and prone out on the bench.

The female increased her hostility and further attempted to escape the officer's grasp, so he radioed for additional help. Officer Francis advised the female if she didn't stop resisting and fighting with Officer Millane she would be tased and then secured in handcuffs. Once she heard mention of the Taser, the female stopped her behavior momentarily allowing Officer Millane the opportunity to secure her in handcuffs.

Even though both suspects were now in handcuffs, they were both screaming obscenities and drawing attention to many commuters. As Officer Francis led the male away to his cruiser, the male kept trying to pull away and fought off being placed in the cruiser. Officers P. Brown, M. Kelly and McGowan arrived on scene to assist.

The male was advised if he did not comply he would be pepper sprayed. He initially refused until the officer assisted him by grabbing his pant legs and lifted them into the rear cruiser compartment. Officer Millane secured the female in the rear of his police vehicle and both suspects were transported to the station for booking. During booking, it was determined that both suspects had warrants for their arrest.

The male suspect, a 21-year-old Dorchester resident, was charged with larceny over $1,200, knowingly resisting arrest and the arrest warrant.

The 18-year-old female suspect, also from Dorchester, was charged with larceny over $1,200, knowingly resisting arrest, disorderly person and the arrest warrant.

OBITUARIES

John H. Boyle, 90

A funeral Mass for John H. Boyle, age 90, of Marshfield, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Mary's Church, Quincy.

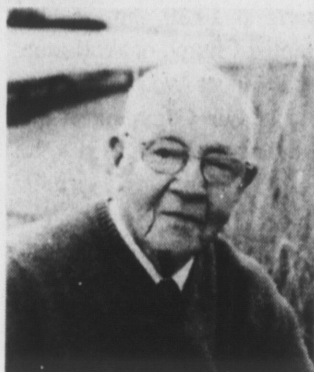

Mr. Boyle died peacefully Feb. 18 in the comfort of his daughter's home, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Greenock, Scotland, to the late John and Mary (Connelly) Boyle. He was raised and educated in Greenock and went on to serve in the merchant marines in Scotland, before immigrating to the United States in 1950, settling in Cambridge. Along with his brothers, Mr. Boyle worked to bring other members of his family to America, including his fiancée, Sarah.

CYNTHIA K. PEDRIALI

Monique Revellese and son-in-law Christopher Revellese, of Killingly, CT, Holly Pedriali of Quincy, Albert

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

A Mass of Christian Burial for Matthew Nicholas Roper was celebrated Tuesday in St. Gregory Church, Dorchester.

Mr. Roper died Feb. 19.

He was the beloved son of Sean and Kristen Roper and adored brother of John and James, all of Quincy; grandson of Paul and Judi Devin of South Yarmouth and George and the late Barbara Roper of Dorchester; nephew of Paul and Jacquie Devin of Milton, Michael and Jodie Roper of Quincy, Ann Roper Quinn of Canton; and the fun loving cousin of Madeline and Molly Devin, Caroline Quinn, and Liam Roper.

Mr. Roper was born on Jan. 29, 2003. His physical journey may have been short, but it was full. In all His Goodness, God joined Mr. Roper with Sean and Kristen in an orphanage in Rostov-on-Don, Russia, and he was finally brought home on April 24, 2004, and it wasn't long before his charm started to show. His big hazel eyes were the window into his soul, and the long eyelashes that protected them only needed to be batted once to further wrap his mother around his little finger. As Mr. Roper grew, his curiosity did too — there was nothing he wouldn't try. His eyes had a mischievous twinkle, and his determination was limitless. He read incessantly and loved sports of all kinds: running track, playing soccer, basketball and baseball. His love of the outdoors led him to discover his true passion with high school rowing, where he was a varsity coxswain for his team at BC High.

Aside from an incident in fourth grade math (wherein he got in trouble for knitting instead of paying attention to a math lesson he already knew how to do), Mr. Roper was driven to always give his best effort, resulting in academic excellence. His hard work paid off with acceptance to Boston College High School, following in the footsteps of his father, grandfather, and uncle. He found a true home for himself at BC High, and his participation in their various activities made him an integral piece of the fabric of the school. It gave him the opportunity to challenge his mind academically, his body physically, and expand his faith with all the school had to offer. He played trumpet in the liturgical music ensemble, using his musical talents to praise God. Mr. Roper earned multiple academic awards and was named a scholar athlete. His friends were the joy of his days, and their support meant so much to Mr. Roper.

He was funny, sometimes inappropriately in his mother's opinion, but even she couldn't resist laughing at his sense of humor and quick wit. He brought a smile to everyone he encountered, his kind and loving nature always on display. Mr. Roper was thoughtful of those around him, creative and generous, but above all, he was kind. Even in his own suffering, Mr. Roper would reach out in compassion to others he knew were struggling, offering them hope and comfort.

As the middle of the boys, Mr. Roper was the bridge that joined their three hearts. He handled his middle child status like a star, finding his own path and using the many gifts God gave him to grow in wisdom and grace. His loyalty to John and James was unparalleled. Mr. Roper was always there to listen when they needed to talk, give advice when asked, and was happy to complete the family Christmas performance by adding his trumpet to the mix.

Mr. Roper knew unconditional love. The connection he shared with his mom and dad was set on his heart from all eternity, and they consider themselves blessed to be chosen as his parents. Mr. Roper loved watching movies with his dad and sharing jokes his mom didn't appreciate, and they spent hours talking about all the things Mr. Roper's future would bring.

Mr. Roper's life was full of love, faith, joy and laughter. He also carried a cross that caused him great suffering in his young life. He bore that cross with courage, knowing he was not carrying it alone, but that his Lord Jesus shared his burden. Mr. Roper's faith in God sustained him in his darkest times, as he fought fiercely against the insidious disease of depression. Mr. Roper believed in the power of prayer, and expressed such gratitude for all those people who prayed for him. We have no doubt that Mr. Roper has been rewarded for his faithfulness, and now rests in peace, at last, in Paradise.

Interment at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were made Dolan Funeral Home, Milton.

old Squantum Elementary School after councillors approved a statement of interest for the project on Monday night.

The statement of interest is the first step in the process to secure Massachusetts School Building Authority funding for the new building. The School Committee had approved the same statement of interest on Feb. 12.

The city has submitted statements of interest to the MSBA concerning the Squantum Elementary School since 2015. City officials are optimistic the state will move ahead with the project this time following the completion of the South-West Middle School last year.

"The School Building Authority deals with applications from all across the state," Mayor Thomas Koch told The Sun in an interview. "When I talked to the executive director this fall, he said we lost out by a whisker. There were just a couple other schools that were a little worse than Squantum. That's how they look at it."

"My guess is we will be successful this next round."

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris expressed the same sentiment Monday night.

"With the beautiful South-West now open and the project now approaching formal closeout, we are hopeful that the time has come for the Squantum Elementary School to be accepted into this program," he said.

Koch, in the interview, said he planned to hire an architect and hold public meetings on the new school this spring.

"I'm probably going to begin a process this spring with the Public Buildings Department and hire an architect to do some initial concepts and have a public meeting or two talking about egress and what could be and where it will be without getting into all the specifics of the programing," the mayor stated.

Harris said doing so could help expedite the process.

"When our number is called, we will be ahead of the game," he said.

Located on Huckins Avenue, the Squantum Elementary School was built in 1919 and an addition was added in 1971. City officials said the facility has not seen any substantial improvements since then and the building lacks the space needed in a modern elementary school.

"There is no question about the need for the project and for the families I represent in Squantum and North Quincy," Harris said. "I would respectfully request again my colleagues join in supporting this important step forward."

The city also intends to build a new elementary school in West Quincy at the site of the former St. Mary School. Koch said the city would begin the process of securing MSBA funding for that new facility once Squantum is underway.

"Once that is underway...we will take a harder look at St. Mary's," he said. "You can't have too many projects going on at the same time and have the School Building Authority participating in it, because they have to deal with a lot of school districts."

In addition to the South-West Middle School, the replacement for the Sterling Middle School that opened last spring, the city has partnered with the MSBA to replace two other buildings over the past decade. The new Quincy High School opened in 2010 followed three years later by the new Central Middle School.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Having second thoughts could be a good thing, even if you're determined to go through with your plans. You might find it worthwhile to take a fresh look at how things have been set up.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Financial matters could continue to be a problem until you're able to straighten out some of the more pesky situations. Once that happens, the rest should be easier to unsnarl.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Family matters once again take center stage, and should be dealt with competently and quickly. And, again, insist on others taking on their fair share of the responsibilities.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your creative pursuits seem to be running into a roadblock. But rather than blame outside factors, look within to see if you might be holding back your efforts for some reason.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Keep that keen Cat's Eye focused on relevant aspects of this new situation in your life. Don't be distracted by trivial matters. You need the pertinent facts before making a decision.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) As much as you prefer doing things on your own, continue to accept help if you still need to resolve the problem affecting your project. Some cheerful news is about to come your way.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) While you might begrudge the added time it will take to get your project from point A to B to C, etc., you could benefit from the facts that will emerge over this expanded time span.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Regarding your workplace suggestions, be prepared to produce the facts to counter reactions from skeptics who feel your approach is unreasonable or even impossible.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Savvy Sagittarians will look for work-related answers on their own rather than rely on unproved assumptions. It might take more time to do so, but the payoff is worth it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your aspects continue to favor family issues, with special emphasis this week on changes in and around your home. Get everyone to suggest what he or she would like to see done.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A matter you thought had been settled might still produce surprises. Best advice: Continue to gather facts to bolster your position just in case you need to produce them quickly.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) While your instincts are usually right when discerning 'twixt truth and deception, you could benefit from doing more research on the new "prospect" that you've been pitched.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your wisdom is only matched by your generosity, making you the sort of friend everyone hopes to have.

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Lin Manuel Miranda is one smart cookie. After creating "Hamilton" for Broadway in 2015 and winning a record 11 Tony Awards, he had the forethought to produce a 2 hour and 40 minute film, with his original cast, two weeks before they left the show. Now, five years later, he's sold the worldwide rights to the highest bidder, Disney, for a mere $75 million. Disney will release it in the fall of 2021. Disney launched its streaming service, Disney+, on Nov. 12, 2019, and had 10 million subscribers that day at $6.99 each. As of today, Disney+ has 30 million subscribers.

Prepare yourself for "The Matrix 4," with Keanu Reeves, Carrie-Anne Moss and Jada Pinkett Smith returning, joined by Priyanka Chopra and Neil Patrick Harris. It's due in theaters May 21, 2021.

All anybody talks about at Hollywood parties is why "The Irishman" -- with its dream cast of Robert De Niro, Al Pacino and Joe Pesci, and top director Martin Scorsese -- has not picked up any awards from 10 Oscar nominations, five Golden Globes nominations and five Bafta nominations (the British Oscars). Critics called it a "masterpiece" and "clever and entertaining," while Leonardo DiCaprio said, "It is absolutely breathtaking." Even though it topped 23 No. 1 best film lists, it seems awards voters turned their backs on it. As some politicians have learned, be careful what you say for the record, it may come back to haunt you later. Martin Scorsese went on rants, saying things like, "I suggest, if you want to see one of my pictures, or most films, please don't look at it on a phone," and about on-line streaming he offered, "Viewers can also turn a picture off and go straight to the next piece of content. If there's no sense of value tied to a given movie, of course, it can be sampled in bits and pieces and just forgotten. The horrible idea they reinforce is that every picture, every image is there to be instantly judged and dismissed without giving audiences time to see it. So the great 20th century art form is reduced to content."

Scorsese must have thought he could create such "a masterpiece" that Netflix would want to release it in theaters, but the major chains -- AMC, Cinemark, Regal and Cineplex -- wanted nothing to do with a movie available for streaming just three weeks later. The film cost $159 million to make and took in $8 million in theaters. Its first day it was streamed by 3.9 million viewers and within five days it rose to 17.1 million viewers. The Oscars and most awards were created to add box-office power to films, but with that kind of viewer power ... who needs awards?

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Phrenology Head --- Medicine has come a long way since the early 1800s, when phrenology was an accepted theory of diagnosis. It was said that each bump on your head covered a part of the brain that controlled a personality trait, like self-esteem, a destructive tendency or religious interest. The bumps might show a criminal tendency, but rewards and punishments could change tendencies. Now considered a pseudoscience, phrenology was important in Britain, Ireland and the United States because of the lecturers who preached about it. Queen Victoria had the heads of her children read. By the 1840s, it had lost credibility in the United States.

Brothers Lorenzo and Orson Fowler became famous for making china phrenology heads that had "maps" of the zones marked on them. They are still the symbols of phrenology, and old heads sell for over $500; modern copies are inexpensive. A baby's head called "The Character Baby," rarely seen, was offered at a Canadian shop, Peter Frampton Antiques & Interiors, for about $250. It pictures the 5-month-old son of the artist, George Ricci, who made phrenology heads from 1915 to 1921.

Q: I collect hair jewelry made in memory of relatives or important people like kings after they die. Was the hair taken from the dead person and braided to form the jewelry? Could you buy hair to make the big hair flower wreaths, or did you just buy a ready-made one?

A: Your questions will sound impolite to some, but remember that burials were usually at home, funerals were held within a few days unless the deceased was very important, and mourning among the rich required black dresses and jewelry for women and often daily church services for a year. Memorial gifts for relatives were given soon after the funeral. By Victorian times, a lock of the deceased's hair was snipped for a locket, ring, pendant or pin, and braided hair jewelry became popular and sometimes homemade. Magazines like "Godey's Ladies Book" printed instructions. Hair wreaths were made with stranger's hair or family hair that was provided for the braided flowers. Commercial jewelry could be a necklace or even a man's watch chain of braided hair. More expensive jewelry used locks or braids in black and white settings of jet, gutta-percha, black onyx, bog oak, iron or black-enamel with gold trim and diamonds or pearls

Boil and let simmer for up to two hours. Strain and store.

ferent circumstances," the mayor said. "People that call for your help are in deep need, whether it's medical, whether it's a fire, whether it is a number of possible issues, you are going to be responding."

Being a firefighter in Quincy, Koch continued, is a great job that also comes with great responsibility.

"This is a great job. The city provides good benefits. We expect service and dedication from you as well," Koch said. "Any time you come in contact with the public, treat them like they are your mother, your sister, your family member."

"They are our clients, they are our residents, they are citizens of this great city."

The new hires will bring the number of personnel inside the department to 236 including all firefighters and officers. That is the highest number of firefighters in the department since Proposition 2 1/2 was approved 40 years ago, Koch said.

"[That] means every piece has good coverage - every piece of apparatus, every neighborhood of our city and every station has excellent coverage," he said.

Sixteen of the new hires are funded through a federal Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response (SAFER) grant, Koch said. The remaining new recruits will fill positions created by retirements.

Koch thanked Patricia McGowan, the city's human resources director, for her work in hiring the new recruits, as well as the investigators in the Police Department who helped vet the candidates. He also thanked city councillors for their support of the department and U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch for helping secure the SAFER grant and other federal funds for the city.

The firefighters began their training Monday inside the former St. Mary School in West Quincy. The city had purchased the site previously and Koch aims to build a new elementary school there.

"These guys that we're swearing in on Friday on Monday will start their classroom work in what is the basement of the old rectory and they will use the old school for a lot of different types of field work and exercises they do," Koch told The Sun in an interview.

"They won't be doing any burning there, but they do all kinds of things to train the guys in different situations."

Jackson said the training will last ten to eleven weeks and will also include sessions at the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy in Stow. The firefighters will be on probation for their first year with the department.

Bank Of Canton Distributing Reusable Tote Bags

Bank of Canton gave out more than 1,000 reusable tote bags in Quincy last week, in advance of the city's March 1st ban on most single-use plastic bags.

Hundreds of bags were donated to local non-profit institutions throughout Quincy. Free bags are also being distributed to anyone visiting the bank's Quincy branch, located at 60 McGrath Highway.

Quincy Council on Aging, Interfaith Social Services, and Quincy Community Action Programs' (QCAP) Southwest Community Food Center all received 200 bags, courtesy of the bank, to share with families and individuals who use their services. The bank also handed out another 500 tote bags at Quincy Asian Resources' Lunar New Year celebration on Feb. 2.

"Bank of Canton has been a great community partner of QCAP over the years," said Beth Ann Strollo, CEO of QCAP. "We are so thankful for their contributions, including most recently the donation of reusable tote bags to our Southwest Community Food Center. Our Food Center serves more than 3,000 people a year, and this donation will help us transition away from plastic bags."

Beginning March 1st, most Quincy retailers will no longer offer disposable plastic bags at checkout, following the passage of legislation by the Quincy City Council last December.

"The Kennedy Center certainly appreciates this generous gift from Bank of Canton," said Marie Ferent, assistant director of the Quincy Council on Aging. "These sturdy bags will be a huge help to our city's seniors when they go food shopping next month."

All Quincy residents are eligible to receive two free tote bags per person at Bank of Canton's 60 McGrath Highway branch while supplies last. Bags are available during lobby business hours, Monday - Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (extended hours on Thursday until 7 p.m.), and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"We wanted to help ease the City of Quincy's transition to reusable bags," said Stephen P. Costello, president and CEO of Bank of Canton. "Providing these tote bags to the city's residents and nonprofit organizations was one small way we could assist."

Bank of Canton has given more than $2.1 million to local charities and nonprofits through donations and sponsorships since 2005. Last year, the bank was recognized with a Corporate Citizenship Award from the Boston Business Journal, and received a Greater Boston region Banking Choice Award based on its Community Contribution ranking in the independent Banking Benchmarks annual survey.
